The Matching Process

Toptal's matching process connects members of its exclusive talent network with the best clients in the world.

There are two primary ways you can start the process:

You can respond to an Availability Request or submit a Job Application.

*If the you have not heard back on an application within 3+ days, assume that other talent may have been sent to the client.

Availability Requests

Availability Requests, also sometimes called Job Interest Requests, occur when a matcher contacts talent who may be a good fit for a role. If you receive a request, this means a matcher pre-verified that you meet several requirements, which typically include job skills, hours available, rate, and time zone overlap.

Where to Find Availability Requests

You can see Job Interest Requests on the Talent Portal. Go to My Jobs and look for them on the Matcher Review tab.

The screenshot shows the Talent Portal interface. On the left, a sidebar contains navigation links: JOBS, Eligible Jobs (219), My Jobs, Payments, TOPTAL ADVANTAGE, Community, Talent Programs, Settings, Resources, and Referrals. The main content area is divided into two sections. The top section, titled 'Pending response (2)', shows two job interest requests. The first is for a 'Junior Security Developer (296991)' with details like 'Core', 'Hourly (10 hrs/wk)', 'Remote', and 'Sent 1 day ago'. The second is for a 'Lead Digital Imaging Developer (295988)' with details like 'Core', 'Full-time (40 hrs/wk)', 'Remote', and 'Sent 1 week ago'. Both requests include a 'View Job Interest Request' button and a 'Reject' button. The bottom section, titled 'My Jobs', shows a 'Senior Security Developer (295287)' job with details like 'Core', 'Full-time (40 hrs/wk)', 'Remote', and '16 hours ago'. The job is marked as 'Applied' and includes a 'View Job Interest Request' button and a 'Reject' button. The 'Matcher Review' tab is selected, and the 'My Jobs' section is visible below it.

Availability Request Responses

- ④ Respond quickly. If a job aligns closely with your skills, expertise, and interests, respond as quickly as possible—ideally within 8 hours. Our goal is to send talent profiles to clients within 24 hours of posting the job, so confirming quickly helps ensure that the matcher considers your profile for the initial group of talent profiles sent to the client. Download the mobile app and turn on notifications to receive alerts about new requests and postings that match your preferences.
- ④ Add relevant details and make connections. Matchers aim to send the “ideal fit” to clients first. Here are some tips to help you communicate why you’re ideal for the role:
 - Link to relevant projects you’ve completed, especially those that addressed a similar challenge in a similar industry.
 - Use the job description to understand the client’s needs and craft a client-focused response.
 - Address the specific requirements of the job, detailing the depth of your experience—in the client’s industry, in the relevant skills, and in solving similar needs. Share examples.
 - Explain how you would add value to the client.
 - Include links, statistics, results, and numbers related to your projects.
- ④ Decline requests that you don’t consider a fit for you. Help matchers understand your job preferences so they know you’re engaged and understand what opportunities might interest you.
 - When declining requests, provide the reason. This will help matchers understand your preferences and send you jobs that are a better fit.
 - Make sure your availability is up to date. Go to your profile in the talent portal and click the availability area in the top right corner.
 - If necessary, update your Job Preferences. See Job Preferences to learn more.
 - Tweak your public profile to reflect your skills and experience according to your job interest.

Job Preferences

One pro tip for an effective job search is to set your Job Preferences. Job Preferences let matchers know what opportunities you are currently seeking, which means you'll receive more relevant Job Interest Requests. You can select what skills should be included or excluded, commitment type, work type (remote or onsite), length of the engagement, client type, and other criteria.

You can set your Job Preferences by accessing the Settings section on the left corner of your Home page.

Multiple Opportunities

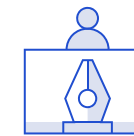

You can also apply for jobs listed in the Toptal Talent Portal. If you see a job that suits your skill set, expertise, experience, availability, and time zone, applying through the portal is an easy way to be considered for the position. You can accept Job Interest Requests and apply to multiple jobs at once.

Some talent incorrectly assume that they should hold off on applying to additional jobs if they are waiting to hear back on an application. While it's best to focus on roles that closely fit your skill set, don't hesitate to apply to multiple roles simultaneously. Matchers have visibility when you are in the running for multiple roles, and applying to multiple opportunities increases the likelihood that you'll receive an offer.

Specialization Center

If you'd like to expand your search, try exploring jobs related to other specializations in your vertical. This will give you a deeper sense of the skills required for those jobs. To view jobs in specializations of interest to you, click the Specialization Center button in the upper right corner of the Eligible Jobs section.

Please note that you may only apply for a job if you qualify for its specialization. If you feel you're a good fit for jobs in another specialization, simply click the button in the upper right corner of the job description to start the application process.

Company Information

This information will help you determine whether the company is the right fit for you given the location, industry, and type.

Job postings include information on the company size so that you can take this into account when assessing the opportunity.

Toptal’s clients include large enterprises, many of which are Fortune 500 companies. On these jobs, you may be working on a team with several other Toptalers.

On the other end of the spectrum, some clients are startups, with only a handful of employees and early-stage ideas.

In between, other clients are fast-growing venture-backed startups and established small-and medium-sized businesses with a few hundred employees.

Year founded:	Unknown	Industry:	Industrial & Manufacturing

Another type of engagement may be a Toptal team, which does custom-managed project-based delivery for clients via teams built from the Toptal network.

The Toptal team manages the project from inception to launch, leveraging best-practice knowledge from talent representing a diverse range of specializations.

The team also includes a delivery manager—a Toptal core staff member—to oversee the talent throughout the engagement and ensure project success. There’s usually a project or product Manager assigned to the project, as well as a technical lead, designer, or finance expert. Hence, on a Toptal team you’d be working alongside with other Toptalers engagements not designated as Toptal team projects you’d be working with the client’s team directly or as an individual contributor.

Job Hiring Status

Before applying for a job, check the Job Hiring Status to learn where the client is in the hiring flow. Here are some details about some of the notifications you might see:

- No one is currently interviewing: The client is accepting applications but has not yet started interviewing. This means it's an excellent time to apply.
- Candidates introduced to the client: The matcher has identified some potential matches for the client. If you have not received a Job Interest Request, but you're interested in the role, you should submit a job application as soon as possible.
- Client is interviewing candidates: You can still apply, but new applications are less likely to be considered.
- Not enough hours: To apply for this job, you need to have the minimum number of weekly hours required.

The screenshot shows a job listing for 'strong Node.js'. At the top right are buttons for 'Hide Job' and 'I'm Interested'. The 'Job Hiring Status' section indicates 'Be the first to apply' with an information icon. The 'Matcher Info' section shows the matcher's name 'Zofia Domanska' and a 'Contact in Slack' link. Below this, job details are listed: 'Est. Length: 3-6 months', 'Languages: English', and 'Job Posted: 2 hours ago'. A blue line with dots connects the 'Job Hiring Status' and 'Matcher Info' sections to their respective headings in the adjacent text.

Matcher Info

You will always know who the matcher is for any job posted on our platform. For questions about specific engagements, reach out to the matcher responsible for the job. But remember, matchers are often on phone calls and receive a high volume of individual messages. If the matcher is unresponsive, visit our Help Center for FAQs, guides, and live chat support. Commitment Type

We offer three types of commitments for jobs:

- Full-time (40 hrs/week)
- Part-time (20 hrs/week)
- Hourly (varies from client to client and throughout an engagement)

Note: In some cases, clients will require you to work extra hours beyond the stated commitment. In those cases, please inform your matcher of the request. This time can be logged as “extra hours” in the platform to ensure that you receive credit as appropriate.

Your Working Hours and Workday Overlap

In a global environment it is important to be transparent about your working hours. Most of Toptal's clients are in the US, so you may need to align with their work schedules. Some clients prefer more overlap, while others may not need as many regular meetings. The job posting and interview can help you understand these requirements.

Client's Hours and Time Zone

Toptal clients and talent span time zones across the world. Some clients specifically want to work with talent in similar time zones. This might mean that the job would benefit from more face-to-face interactions, whether in-person or via web conference. Others may not need as many regular stand-ups or meetings with the company's core team. The job posting can help inform whether this is a priority.

Suggested Practices

- ✓ Before applying, look at the client's time zone and working hours and think about whether you can realistically commit to the overlap requirements. Overlap requirements are the minimum number of hours the client desires for overlap between the talent's working hours and their own. Aim for at least two hours of overlap.
- ✓ Matchers may occasionally ask you for details about your working hours. Take the time to think about these questions and respond accurately.
- ✓ If you are flexible and can work outside of your normal business hours for occasional meetings, make sure to update the Flexible Hours section accordingly—look for it in your settings under Scheduling. We also recommend setting flexible hours that will allow you to help coordinate meetings with clients in different time zones.

Required Skills

Review the Required Skills section carefully. Do you have the skills to deliver high-quality results? Do you have all skills required by the client, or at least the majority of them? your strengths are relevant to the requirements, and you would be able to meet or exceed expectations, go ahead and apply.

Optional Skills

Some job descriptions list optional skills. These skills can help confirm whether the job is a good fit for you, as well as present additional points on which you can sell your candidacy. If you have those skills, make sure you list them in your profile and connect them to your experience.

2. How soon can you start working on this role/position?

Effective Job Applications

✓ Skills overlap: Make sure your list of skills is comprehensive and relevant to your target jobs. Matchers typically search for talent based on skills. Also make sure your skills are connected to a job or project in your profile to demonstrate where you used those skills. Matchers use that information to validate your skills and pitch your profile to clients. Make it easy for them to convince clients you are the right fit.

✓ Work experience: Your work experience should match the skills listed in your profile. Include where and how you've used your skills, the problems you've solved, and the way you've contributed to project goals. If you worked for the same employer for several years, organize your experience with that employer by initiatives, projects, or roles you've held.

✓ Portfolio projects: Showcase your past experience and illustrate your skills. Matchers and clients will closely review your portfolio to determine fit for a role. At a minimum, include the number of portfolio projects Toptal recommends for your field:

- Developers: 5
- Designers: 6
- Finance experts: 3
- Project managers: 3
- Product managers: 3

✓ External profiles: Link to your GitHub, LinkedIn, and Behance profiles, as well as your personal website, to increase your chances. Prospective clients like to see work descriptions and samples, when possible.

✓ Workday overlap: Flexibility in workday overlap increases your eligibility for roles. Just make sure you can follow through.

✓ Rate: You can adjust your rate for a specific job through the Application Builder, whether you're applying for a job or responding to a Job Interest Request. You can try providing a lower rate when applying for a job to be more competitive. Assume that you cannot change your rate once an application is submitted, as the client is expecting that you are available at the rate for which your profile was presented to them.

Job Application Questions

Application Questions

Often matchers will ask additional questions to determine if you are the right person for the job. These questions are an important part of the application process since matchers use your answers to:

- Ensure there is no misunderstanding about talent's availability and coverage of the time zone requirements.
- Ensure there are no unpleasant surprises about planned time off during onboarding or other critical client timeframes.
- Speed up the process by removing the back-and-forth between clients, matchers, and talent for information matchers know clients will need.
- Make sure you provide information about your experience that is relevant to the most important aspects of the job.

The screenshot shows a job application interface. At the top, there are fields for 'Client's Hours' (08:00 PM - 2:00 AM), 'Desired Start Date' (Jan 1, 2022), 'Workday Overlap' (6 hrs (2 hrs required)), and 'Time Zone' (New York, 9 hrs and 30 mins behind). Below these is the 'Application Questions' section with five numbered questions:

1. The client's time zone is (UTC-04:00) America - New York, and their working hours are 6:30pm - 2:30am in your time zone (UTC+05:30) Asia - Calcutta. How many hours of overlap can you provide during their workday?
2. What's the soonest time that you would be available for an interview?
3. This job expects you to be available for 20 hours per week. Please confirm that you can guarantee that availability.
4. How soon can you start working on this role/position?
5. This job will require, on average, two daily checkpoints with a senior developer. Are you comfortable with such a way of working?

Below the questions is a 'Show less' link with an upward arrow. Further down is the 'Required Skills' section, which includes a notification: 'Your profile has 4 out of 5 required skills. If you have any of the additional required skills, we recommend updating the skills to improve your chances of getting hired for this or similar jobs'.

Job Application Questions

Answer the application questions using the third person. If your answer is already part of your pitch, you don't need to repeat your answer. You can comment "added in the pitch."

EXAMPLE 1

Question: Tell me about your experience with e-commerce and Tableau, if applicable.

✓ Good answer:

For the past five years, [Talent name] launched multiple features for a B2B SaaS email marketing platform that focused on e-commerce clients that have ~35 million users. [Talent name] ran discovery sessions with multiple clients and relied on Tableau and Segment to analyze user behavior and get insights to drive the backlog prioritization.

✗ Bad answer:

I am a leader in this industry.

EXAMPLE 2

Question: Tell me about your experience as an Agile Coach.

✓ Good answer:

[Talent name] has worked as an Agile coach for the past five years, leading eight Agile teams to ramp up their knowledge and execution of Agile practices.

✗ Bad answer:

I was an Agile coach in a team, and it was a huge success.

Job Application Pitches

When applying for a job, you will be asked to write a pitch. The main goals of a pitch are to attract the attention of matchers and clients, to hook clients into reading your whole profile, and of course, to increase your chances of being interviewed.

The biggest difference between a poor, good, or outstanding pitch is focus.

A client-focused pitch should address the specific requirements of the job. Crafting a successful pitch depends on understanding the client's needs. The job posting will give you some key information. In addition, do some research to find out more about the company and its culture. The more information you have on the company, project, or job, the better the pitch you'll be able to create.

In your pitch you should detail the depth of your experience in the client's industry, in the relevant skill, and in solving similar needs. This personal story, including specific examples and details, should tell them that you have the experience and tools needed. Your pitch should also let them know how you would add value, using links, statistics, results, and numbers from your projects if possible.

Also remember to mention your enthusiasm regarding these types of projects. This signals to the client that you're invested in the success of the project.

Job Application Pitches

In conclusion, a “Wow” factor pitch:

- Balances general career overview with impressive details.
- Stands out from the crowd—shows personality and tells a story in 500 characters or less.
- Uses specific examples of what you’ve accomplished for clients, including quantifiable results.
- Is client focused: This translates into “This is the value I can bring to you. This is why you want me on your team.”

The Pitch

Where have you worked?

It's great to include industry experience, even if your past roles differ from your current focus.

- What industries, companies, or types of companies?
- What size companies (e.g., annual revenue in U.S. dollars)?

Who are you professionally?

- What kind of work have you done?
- How many years of experience do you have?

What's your specialty?

- What are you most expert in (e.g., types of projects, methods, technologies)?
- What makes you stand out from the crowd?
- What do you do better than others in your area(s) of focus?

What's your most notable professional achievement?

You can start with this if it's really impressive!

- What did you create (single or in aggregate)?
 - How big was it (e.g., project budget or value, number of active users)?
 - For what company or type of company? Name well-known brands or companies if you can.
 - What were the results?
- What awards have you received?

Strong Applications

Example 1: Python Engineer with AWS and Robotics Experience

Python Engineer

[Talent name] is an experienced Python developer and has some experience with JavaScript (though he is definitely not an expert). [Talent name] has primarily worked with AWS on many projects, including the latest one on the profile where he developed a Python API service with Starlette and GraphQL, with a PostgreSQL database.

Most importantly, [Talent name] is very passionate about robotics. He won a national competition arranged by the local university where he was part of a team that beat 10 other entries. In addition, about two years ago, he worked for a local company as a consultant where he developed the cloud infrastructure for remote monitoring and manual control of multiple geographically diverse robotic systems. For the same company, [Talent name] was also part of the review team that analyzed the conceptual designs for an autonomous robotic system—the goal was to validate the design and provide feedback.

Starting part-time and shifting to full-time is perfect for [Talent name].

He can wrap up his current projects in 3-4 weeks' time, after which he should be open for a full-time commitment. [Talent name] will be able to provide at least four hours of work time, overlapping with mornings in Eastern Standard Time. If the client is interested in an interview, he is available every day for the rest of the week, from 9 AM to 3 PM EST.

What makes this application strong?

- ✓ Shows why this project specifically would be a good fit
- ✓ Highlights and ranks skills clearly
- ✓ Shows passion for the work

Strong Applications

Example 2: Salesforce Consultant

Salesforce Consultant

[Talent name] is a Salesforce consultant with six years of experience in the IT industry and a strong knowledge of requirements analysis, administration, development, testing, and deployment.

[Talent name] specializes in Salesforce implementations, administration, and web service integrations. He's also familiar with the Apex language, Lightning Web components, various types of integrations, custom settings, flows, process builders, and other standard features.

[Talent name] is an experienced architect. In his last role he served as the global architect for Salesforce.com and Salesforce CPQ solution design and development and led the Salesforce CPQ implementations for the global business. [Talent name] is also proficient in API integration; in a recent project, he worked on SOAP APIs to fetch the customer surveys in real-time from an external source and used inbound email handlers for parsing incoming messages from customer

What makes this application strong?

- ✓ Well written: uses third person and is free of grammatical errors
- ✓ Highlights relevant skills

Weak Applications

Example 1: iOS Developer

iOS
Developer

Hi, Sir! This project is really amazing project for my skill-set:

I am very familiar with iOS native app development. I have started iOS app development since 2011, almost 8 years experience. I have developed and published so many apps onto Apple App Store. Hope you check my portfolio projects for iOS on my Toptal profile kindly.

I want to work on this project by using my full experiences in iOS development skills on Xcode.

Honestly, if I can get a chance to work for this project, I will really do my best and provide the best service that the customer will be really happy. In the quality and speed, I am almost sure that I can win against anyone else in the android and iOS app development area.

What makes this application weak?

- ⊗ Vague and far too broad
- ⊗ Repetitive, poor grammar
- ⊗ Last paragraph is unnecessary

Weak Applications

Example 2: Brand and Web Designer—Medical Professional's Job Marketplace

Brand
and Web Designer

implemented end to end flow from pardot marketing to sales cloud lead management to lead assignment and closing the opportunity.

Currently helping the same customer to build their social media marketing through social studio.

What makes this application weak?

- ⊗ Experience is too wide to be relevant to the position
- ⊗ Unclear which customer talent is referring to
- ⊗ Numerous spelling and grammatical errors

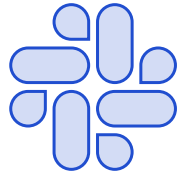

After You Apply

- You will typically hear back within 1-3 days if your application has been sent to a client. Expect to hear back only if you're being invited to interview.
- A number of posted jobs will be canceled. Fast-paced companies often change their hiring needs. While this can be frustrating, Toptal works hard to minimize cancellations. Focus on what you can control: keep applying to roles that feel like a strong fit, even if you are already in the running for another job.
- If you are struggling to find success, experiment with small changes to your profile. Sometimes minor adjustments to your availability, working hours, or rate can increase the volume of opportunities. These are all variables you can readjust as needed.
- Due to the large number of applications, matchers cannot routinely provide feedback on every application submitted. If you are seeing an unusually high number of failed applications, you can visit our Help Center for FAQs, guides, and live chat support. Need help now? Submit a support request.
